Special Statue in Manchester:

Something unusual happens at the Manchester Museum. An Egyptian statue rotates. People see it. They want to know why it happened. They have cameras. One camera takes pictures of the statue. It is there for some time. It takes many pictures. People put a machine by the statue. The machine feels vibrations. The vibrations come from the street. Buses can cause vibration. When there is a vibration, the statue rotates.

Black water in a fountain

The Last Generation is a group of climate activists. They take action to protect the natural world. Last weekend, three men and one woman step into a famous fountain in Rome, Italy. The Barcaccia fountain is from the 17th century. It is at the bottom of the famous Spanish Steps. Thousands of tourists come here every day. The activists pour black liquid into the fountain. The water turns black. On social media, the activists say that changing weather has a bad impact on water in the world. It rains a little. Farmers do not have enough water to grow crops. Sea levels are rising. World leaders and people do not care about these problems. Black water in a fountain is more shocking for them. The police arrest the activists. They are in custody now.

Batteries for electric cars

Volkswagen is the biggest carmaker in Europe. The company plans to invest in mines. Volkswagen wants to control the supply chain. These days, carmakers do not want to depend on parts or materials from other companies. Soon, carmakers will make only electric cars. They will need raw materials for batteries. The problem is that mines do not produce enough materials. If carmakers control the mines, the situation will be easier for them. Volkswagen wants to build battery plants in Europe and North America. It will send batteries to other carmakers.

Ukrainian children come home

More than 30 children are back with their families in Ukraine. These children stay in areas which Russia occupies during the war with Ukraine. These children go to a summer camp. They should stay for two weeks. But they stay from four to six months. Russian authorities take the children away. They keep them in separate buildings. They tell the children that their families do not want them anymore. A special rescue mission brings the children home. The children travel across four different countries. Ukrainian officials say that Russia deports about 19,500 Ukrainian children.

Apple opens a store in India

Carlo Vini

Apple CEO Tim Cook opens the first Apple store in India. The store is located in Mumbai's financial center. It takes many years to plan. Apple must follow India's regulations. One of the rules is that Apple must use local sources. Apple wants to make more money and build things in India. It is important to make business there. Apple makes almost $6 billion in India in one year until March. Apple is adding more factories and workers to make things in India. It is good because more and more people in India want to buy iPhones and other Apple products.

River on Fire

This news is from Australia. An Australian MP (Member of Parliament) is on a boat in a river. He has a lighter. He puts the lighter near the river and the river gets on fire! Someone films everything. Water does not burn, but methane does. Methane is a type of gas. It is coming up the river. It is coming up because there is a fracking site. The MP wants to stop it.

TikTok ban

TikTok is a social media app. It is very popular among young people. Chinese company ByteDance creates TikTok. Many countries say the Chinese government has information about TikTok users. TikTok is connected with the government. Some countries worry about their national security. They believe that China can use the information against them. Many countries ban TikTok on government phones. These countries are for example the UK, Belgium, the EU, and New Zealand. China says that banning TikTok is not fair and companies from all countries can do business.

US presidents and Ireland

US President Joe Biden arrives in Belfast on Tuesday evening to see the island of Ireland. He is here to remember a big agreement 25 years ago. The agreement helps stop the fighting in Northern Ireland. Biden is Irish Catholic. He visits his family's old homes in Louth and Mayo for four days. Many US presidents have Irish families. The most famous Irish-American president is John F. Kennedy. He is the first US Catholic president. He visits Ireland in 1963. Eamon de Valera is the president of Ireland at that time. He is a symbol of Catholic Irishness and freedom. Barack Obama visits Ireland in May 2011. He goes to Offaly where his great-great-grandfather comes from before he goes to America. Two years later, Obama visits Belfast. People there like him a lot.

UK public alert system

On Sunday 23rd April at 3 pm, millions of phones in the UK will make a loud noise and vibrate. The government will test a new alert system. The sound is like a phone call, but it will last for 10 seconds. It will be a warning sound. People will not answer the call. Only phones with 4G and 5G can get the message. The government will tell you that it is a test. The test is happening when big events are happening too. For example the London Marathon or football matches. Some people worry that it will distract drivers. The test could also show where people hide their phones. This may not be safe for some people.

Chile's lithium industry

Chile's president Gabriel Boric wants to take control of the country's lithium industry. Lithium is a metal used in electric car batteries. This move will help Chile's economy. It will protect Chile's nature, too. SQM and Albemarle are two big companies in the lithium industry. The government will take over their lithium factories and run a new company. This will make it harder for electric car makers to get the materials which they need. Other countries are also trying to protect their resources. Mexico, Argentina, and Bolivia are working together to use lithium and other minerals well.

France protests

Last summer in France is the hottest in history. Officials look for ways how to help farmers grow crops. There is a plan to build a water reservoir in Western France. Farmers can use water from this reservoir when it does not rain. They bring the water to their fields. But many people protest against the reservoir. They say that the reservoir is too big. They worry that only big farms will have water from it. 6,000 people protest last week. But authorities do not allow the protest. Big protests are in France now. The government passes a new law about pensions. Many people are angry.

New technologies in US power plants

non lo so

The US government is preparing a new law. This law means that gas power plants must use special technology. This technology catches carbon emissions. President Joe Biden wants to reduce carbon dioxide emissions in 12 years. Officials will announce the rules for power plants this week. Gas power plants make up around 25% of the US carbon emissions. Power plants will use these technologies. Some companies may build new power plants. But it will be hard for them to compete with solar or wind power plants. The new rules will work instead of the rules by Obama and Trump administrations.

Brazil school attack

A man kills four small children in a private preschool. The attack happens in southern Brazil. The man is 25 years old. He climbs over a wall. He gets inside the building. He attacks the children with an axe. He goes to the police after the attack. Police arrest him. Police say that the man attacks his grandfather with a knife in 2021. He also has problems with violence and drugs. Local people do not understand how the attack can happen. They lay flowers in front of the school. One week ago, a 13-year-old boy kills a teacher with a knife. She hurts five other people. The attack happens in Sao Paulo.

Finland joins NATO

On Tuesday, Finland becomes a member of NATO. NATO is a military alliance. 31 countries are in NATO. If someone attacks one member of NATO, it is an attack on all. When Russia attacks Ukraine in February 2022, Finland does not feel safe. Finland is Russia's neighbor. Finland worries that Russia can attack it, too. When Finland joins NATO, NATO's border with Russia doubles. Now, Finland wants Sweden to join NATO, too. Sweden is a good neighbor of Finland. Russia's reaction is not good. Russian officials say that they will bring more soldiers to the country's northwestern border. It can also make the war in Ukraine worse.
